Talent management

Talent management at College of Szolnok has three major components. As a result, students participating in the process can easily continue their studies to obtain higher degrees, can find well-paid jobs in business life or can work as a teaching assistant at College of Szolnok.

1. If you feel you are talented and you have that extra incentive to learn new things outside the classroom you can join the talent management program of College of Szolnok.

The first obstacle you have to overcome is the successful completion of a seminar called Proseminar in the first semester. If you and your seminar leader have the same opinion that your participation in the talent management program is beneficial for you, and your first semester GPA is above average then you can apply for a membership in Bethlen István College for Advanced Studies by filling in an application form.

You can choose the appropriate workshop according to your needs and by participating in its work you will get not only professional but lots of social experience in the community at the same time.

The professional work in the workgroups is led by different research teams of 3 or 4. With the help of the professional leader of the specific workgroup you find out what the most suitable activity is for you to contribute to and together with your leader you choose the most appropriate research team and make the registration. The work in the research teams is coordinated by college professors, college associate professors or those assistant college professors who participate in doctoral programs. All the events organized by the teams are open and are based on the unprompted work and participation of the students.

If the level of your work in the research team of the College for Advanced Studies is at a decent level then you have the possibility to prepare a paper in the Scientific Students' Association ("TDK", which stands for 'Tudományos Diákkör' in Hungarian) with the help of a mentor.
2. As part of the talent management program of the college, the activity in Scientific Students' Association provides the chance for the students to conduct scientific research in close cooperation with their professors. Our goal is to strengthen the basic personal qualities required for research: the need for persistent work, the honor and respect for science and values and the acceptance of others' professional work. During the conferences of the Scientific Students' Association our students present the results of their research, this way they learn how to make arguments for their work and they get to know their peers' scientific achievements as well. The best presentations can qualify to be shown at the national conference of the Scientific Students' Association. Apart from being part of an enthusiastic team whose members help each other, they can make good use of the knowledge they learnt in their studies and future work too.

3. The third pillar of the talent management program of College of Szolnok is the demonstration system, the process through which the most talented students, after a selection process, are involved in the everyday work of the departments especially in the teaching and research life. To be a demonstrator you also have to submit an application form.

The employment of the demonstrators has the primary purpose of strengthening the students' professional commitment, preparing them to be able to do their future work at a standard higher than average and encouraging them to continue their studies to obtain higher degrees.

The demonstrators' task is to be role models with their excellence to their fellow students and to help them with their studies. The introduction of the demonstration system at College of Szolnok embraced the primary goal that talented students in their first year as junior demonstrators and later as senior demonstrators be able to participate in such activities as making and correcting tests, creating and editing websites, chaperoning on exams and doing any other tasks involving research or different scientific work. A further aim of the process is to facilitate the making of such communities in which the demonstrators, with the support of the faculty and fellow students, can find their own field of interest either with education or research that is beneficial for their personal development. The demonstration program, similarly to the whole academic year, is divided into semesters for two reasons: on the one hand to make it possible to be connected to the specific course units (subjects) offered in the given semester and the ongoing or future researches and on the other hand to organize monthly events for the demonstrators.
The main requisite for the would-be and current demonstrator s is to dig deep into a specific topic and to collect and organize all kinds of information about it. The final goal of the scientific work is to participate in the conference of the Scientific Students’ Association. The demonstrators’ personal development can also be advanced if they join the college professors’ research programs. Demonstrators in their third year can give lectures with the guidance of their college professors. If both the department and the demonstrator have the same intention, the demonstrators can continue to work as an economic teacher while doing their master degree. And after meeting the requirements outlaid in the Hungarian Higher Education Law they can start work as a teaching assistant at College of Szolnok.
